Forecasts of the Trail Ride

Apr. 15
1943

The plans for our twentieth annual trail ride (July 30th to August 3rd, 1943) remain as they were outlined in the previous Bulletin, and if the weather is propitious for the cutting of the new sections of trail on Fatigue and Harvey Passes, we shall ride this summer over one of the most spectacular routes in the vicinity of Banff.

Should anything intervene, we have six alternative routes available, but the one selected has the advantage of being virgin country to the trail rider for much of the way — high alpine country about timberline and skirting lakes where the fishing is good. Claude Brewster will once again be our outfitter, and we hope to meet again some of the friendly and reliable Stoney Indian guides who have been with us for the last few years.

Many have asked how Lake Eohippus got its name. One explanation is that this was the haunt of the prehistoric four-toed horse named Eohippus, dating from the lower Eocene epoch. Professors of geology who are strong in arithmetic can tell how many million years ago that was.

Others ascribe it to the fertile vocabulary of A. O. Wheeler, who made the topographical surveys of this area for the Canadian Government. During the two nights on which we hope to camp by the shores of this lake, the argument will no doubt be settled. Some of us will see the ghosts of the Eohippus, others will not.

We are respectfully taking our hats off to the price ceiling, and the rate for the annual Trail Ride will remain as before, namely $50.00 for the five days. How Claude will handle the meatless days and other rationing problems remains to be seen, but we can rest assured that the "It" in "Come and get it" will be worth while and satisfying.

Those who are planning to come this year are requested to notify the Secretary-Treasurer at Room 318, Windsor Station, Montreal, or L. S. Crosby, Western Secretary, Banff, Alberta, as early as possible.

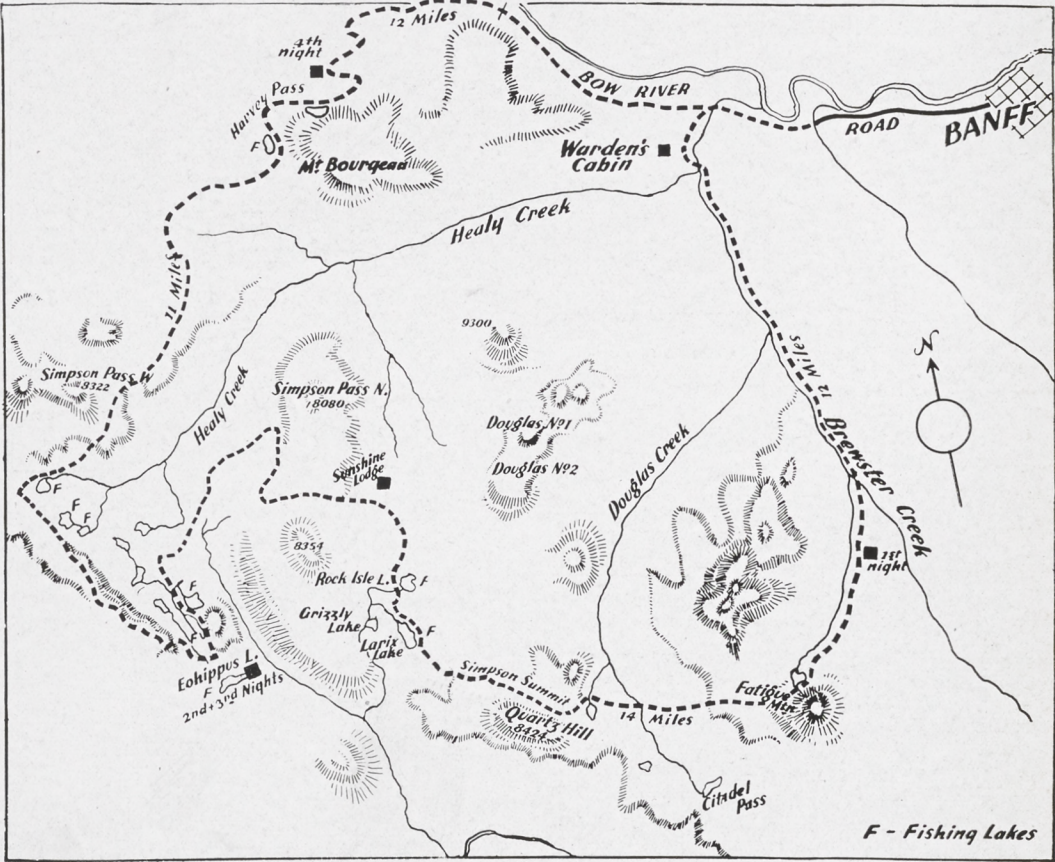

BRING A CAMERA!

Prospective trail riders are reminded that this year's proposed itinerary offers photographic opportunities second to none, and that cameras, whether they be elaborate movie-makers or those of the time-honored box variety, should be a part of every trail rider's equipment.

The varied and spectacular nature of the 1943 route should be sufficient to start cameras clicking and grinding from the time the cavalcade sets out from Banff. Regardless of where the camera fan points his camera he is almost sure of finding a worthy target for his lens.

And remember that coveted objective of every trail riding camera fan — the Townsend Trophy which will again be awarded for the most outstanding trail ride photograph of the year. This may be your lucky year!

"Know Your Mount, Mr. Dude"

by Graham Nichols

Of course you want your trail ride horse to like you! After all you and he are going to see a lot of each other during those five glamorous days on the trail. So it's just as well to size up your mount and get into his good books right from the start. This advice is particularly applicable to dudes who have had little or no riding experience.

Some horses, of course, take to their riders right from the start; others, like some people, are harder to get to know. Many riders maintain that a horse's expression gives the major clue as to the animal's be over-estimated as a contributing factor. And should this fail to bring the desired results there is always "bribery" to fall back on. This might take the form of tempting the horse with some morsel pleasing to the equine palate — but not sugar.

The fact that sugar fails to tempt the western horse's palate is a source of wonder, particularly to trail riders from the east where a lump of sugar is the horse's "piece de resistance". So save your sugar for the tea and coffee.

Have a Good Line

Care should be taken at all times to assure your horse's comfort and general well being. Keeping the horse properly reined during the ride is particularly important to the maintenance of good relationship between rider and horse. The lines should be held at sufficiently short length, of course, to assure control of the animal, but never so short that the horse fairly chokes every time it moves its head or lunges at a tempting mouthful of green along the trail side.

And speaking of lines it is particularly important that the rider unfasten the lines, letting them dangle singly at the horse's sides, when dismounting for a rest on the trail. If allowed to hang or drag while still looped, the horse stands a good chance of tripping, perhaps breaking a leg. Alert character and disposition. This is supposed to be revealed by the gleam in the animal's eye — or the droop of its lower lip.

One thing, however, the trail rider can start off with in his equine psychoanalysis, is the knowledge that his horse has been broken to the trails. His horse comes from accredited stock, has earned a reputation for good manners and manoeuvrability on the trails, and in all respects has conformed to the requisites of a good trail ride horse.

If Kindness Fails, Try Bribery

But it's just as well to find out more about your horse's character at the outset of the ride. Some trail riders actually visit Seebe, Alta. where many of the horses are corralled, well in advance of the ride, with a view to selecting a horse of their liking and getting on speaking terms with their prospective mounts. This prolongs the friendship and makes the ride more enjoyable for both horse and rider.

There are numerous means of gaining your horse's friendship, confidence and respect. Kindness, of course, cannot be

A vivid two reel 16-millimetre silent movie of last year's trail ride in Kodachrome, selected from the shots taken by Dr. A. S. Copeland of Toronto, has just been released.

Prints will be distributed through Canadian Pacific offices in Canada, and in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles. Should you desire the loan of a print for projection purposes, please write to these offices or to the Secretary-Treasurer, Room 318, Windsor Station, Montreal, P.Q.

A one-reel 16-millimetre film also in Kodachrome, depicting the highlights of last year's hike, entitled "Hiking on Top of the World" can be obtained through the same channels.

Winnipeggers Take to the Trails

Not all of Canada's organized trail rides have their origin in the Canadian Rockies. The beat of equine hooves sounds just as sweet to the ears of riders on the contrasting trails of the Manitoba prairies! As an example we refer to the enthusiastic and highly successful rides sponsored by the Glenmore Riding Academy of Winnipeg, whose members have staged a number of organized saddle sorties in recent months.

Though all of its rides have attracted an impressive quota of equestrians, the most successful venture took place last February. On this occasion no less than 96 lovers of the boot and saddle mounted their steeds at the Cambridge Riding Club and the Stanley Allen Riding Academy, and rode for a distance of 12 miles over the snow-carpeted prairie trails.

The ride, which was organized by Messrs. Douglas Walker, Bill Tullis and Walter Kane of the Horseman's Club, was the second of its kind to be held for the current year, the first of which took place early in January and attracted 82 riders.

The prairie equestrians were photographed (above) as they were crossing the "Old Ford" at Silver Heights — a scene that dispels any belief that the prairies are lacking in scenic appeal. The ride terminated at the Silver Heights Riding Stables.

HORSES AREN'T SO DUMB!

It doesn't take a trail ride horse long to size up its rider, according to Jim Brewster of Banff who has been studying the ways of horses and tourists for years.

No matter how nonchalant the tenderfoot tourist may try to appear on his first ride, the average horse knows there's a novice in the saddle. Nor will any amount of fancy paraphernalia, cowboy attire or "Heigh-ho Silvers" fool the seasoned mountain pony.

Just how the horse will react to the beginner's conduct depends largely on the horse's temperament — and the rider's. According to Jim Brewster the average saddle horse will politely suppress a horse laugh and mutter the horse equivalent of "Here's where I take it easy".

Given this type of mount the inexperienced rider will often have to read the riot act. A brisk snap of the rein or a nudge where the horse will feel it most are recommended if the rider wishes to convince the horse that he or she is not to be trifled with.

Otherwise, the horse may be inclined to make a bee-line back to the corral — or what is still more provoking to the average dude — stop by the wayside and munch grass. Others sensing a tenderfoot aloft may not bother to start at all.

With a seasoned rider, however, the horse knows he has to tow the line. He immediately senses the presence of an expert in the saddle, and tourist or no tourist, he knows there is to be no fooling. Claude Brewster's saddle horses have been negotiating the trails for years, and he says, they can usually spot a dude a mile away.

In defence of the horse's attitude, however, it must be admitted that they always handle the tenderfoot with care. They realize that delayed starts, munching grass by the wayside, or trotting back to the corral never hurt a rider yet, the only possible casualty being perhaps a slightly damaged pride.

"JIM" BREWSTER FRACTURES LEG IN SKI MISHAP

J. I. Brewster

Trail Riders and other friends of Mr. J. I. Brewster of Banff, who suffered a fractured leg in a recent ski accident, will be pleased to hear that "Jim" is progressing satisfactorily and getting about with the aid of crutches.

Mr. Brewster, who is a life member of the Trail Riders organization and a wearer of the Order's 2,500-mile button, met with his mishap while negotiating a particularly tricky run on Banff's Mount Norquay on February 14.

According to a letter to the Secretary-Treasurer, dated March 30, "Jim" seemed to be recovering speedily from the mishap that confined him to Canmore Hospital where the injured limb was placed in a cast. "I am getting along fairly well", he said in his letter, "but expect to be on crutches for some time".

An X-Ray of Mr. Brewster's knee following the accident showed a fracture in both bones below the knee, in addition to which the patient suffered considerably from shock.

DOG HAS ITS DAYS ON TRAIL RIDE

The joys of trail riding are not confined to the human race alone; the craze has also penetrated the ranks of Dogdom. We refer in this case to "Eska", prize-winning golden haired chow, the property of Mr. and Mrs. M. Titherington of Victoria, B.C.

Last summer, perched atop a sure-footed mountain cayuse, Eska spent 42 days on the trail between Banff and Lake Louise, including the high country around Mount Assiniboine and Sunshine Valley.

From her unique vantage point the canine equestrian got a first-hand view of the Rockies, and unlike "Dusty", famous trail ride pal of Claude Brewster's, saw it all from a sitting down position.

Care was taken to ensure satisfaction of the "inner dog" during the trail ride, a good supply of Eska's favorite dog food accompanying the party. Her "saddle" took the form of a specially constructed basket that afforded first class vision and ventilation.

One of dogdom's most consistent prize winners in the chow class, Eska has more than 25 "firsts" to her credit. Chances are her newest hobby of trail riding will reward her with additional poise and further laurels at the next dog show.

Photographic orchids this year go to Trail Rider Jane Diverty of Woodbury, N. J. whose impressive "Larix Lake" entry, reproduced on the adjacent page, has won her the coveted Townsend Trophy, awarded annually for the best photograph taken on the Trail Ride of that year.

The winning photograph, whose excellence of composition, choice of subject and technical perfection drew an unanimous decision from the judges, was selected from a field of entries submitted by Trail Riders in both Canada and the United States.

In accordance with the terms of the contest, Miss Diverty will have her name inscribed on the big silver trophy, presented by Reginald Townsend of New York, one of our Charter Members, in addition to which she will receive a small silver replica of the cup as a further tribute to her photographic skill.

Miss Diverty was not alone in her choice of Larix as the target for her camera lens. The larch-fringed lake, fondly remembered by last year's Trail Riders as the site of their last camp, was presented in other moods, as was Redearth Pass, Rock Isle Lake and other points on the 1942 itinerary.

Miss Diverty, one of the most popular members of the Trail Riders' younger set, is the daughter of the society's genial "President Marshall" who will lead its destinies for the current season. Jane has been a Trail Rider for several years and wears the Order's 500-mile button.

Advice to the Trail Rider

by Pamela Flutterby

What to take on a Trail Ride? It's easier to say what not to take on a Trail Ride.

For instance it's silly to take a pipe organ, or even a grand piano, for the Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. J. Murray Gibbon, provides a very workable folding organ which can be slung over the back of a pack horse and carried easily from camp to camp.

Of course, it takes some one who is a cross between musician and an athlete to manipulate it because of the foot work and the bellows.

Graham Nichols somehow managed to get a stranglehold on the instrument last year, and likely will be able to wrestle with it satisfactorily this year, so that a musical background for the trail songs, always such an important part of the campfire sessions, is assured.

Nor is it necessary to take along any other musical instruments larger than a small mouth organ or Jew's harp, for there is usually a singing cowboy with a guitar in the background to whip up a trail song or lament the death of his favorite paint horse.

Leave Stoves at Home

Trail Riders are advised not to bring stoves, as Claude Brewster, the outfitter, turned up last year with two of them, both folding models. To see the cooks and their helpers setting up or breaking camp, putting up stove pipe and getting those collapsible stoves to work was reminiscent of roustabouts striking the circus big top.

Tents are provided, or teepees for larger groups, so that Trail Riders will not find it necessary to carry pre-fabricated bungalows. Thanks to the hole in the top of the teepees, fires can be lit right in the middle of the tent when nights are cold, so that it is not necessary to bring furnaces.

It is always advisable, however, to bring a candle, or several of them, but not for heating purposes. They are good for lighting the tent in addition to which they also save matches in the lighting of smokes, and can be used to good advantage in getting a recalcitrant teepee fire to blaze. In this respect a two-inch length of ordinary candle can be reckoned as the equal of at least two boxes of matches.

Horses are Supplied — but Bring Candy

Trail Rides as organized and managed by the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, make it very easy for the rider in the matter of equipment. A horse, selected to the rider's leg measurements and weight, is provided; also a saddle to fit, bridle and necessary accoutrements. Teepees and tents are part of the equipment, and the association has sleeping bags and blankets to rent at nominal cost for the comfort of the guest. Riders need only to bring their clothes, change of clothing as desired, toilet articles, smokes and other comforts.

While the catering is of the best — good food in plenty and well cooked, including fresh fruits and other dainties — riders often like to take along a few chocolate bars (if such can be had) plus chewing gum and candy. Something to keep the mouth moist and the gastric juices flowing is particularly beneficial when the weather is hot and dry. So don't forget to give your candy counter the once over before leaving.

For clothing the rider has a wide choice. It is always advisable, however, to travel light and not take along a lot of things that can't be used, and only help burden the pack train. Durable shirts, denim trousers of the cowboy variety, riding boots or heavy walking boots, if preferred; a windbreaker jacket and sweater and good woollen socks, are basic essentials. Durable shirts, denim trousers of the cowboy variety, riding boots or heavy walking boots, if preferred; a windbreaker jacket and sweater and good woollen socks, are basic essentials. Since the evenings are usually cool, some kind of heavy jacket or sweater for the campfire sessions is a wise precaution, while a pair of lighter shoes or "sneakers" to wear around the camp in the evenings is a worthwhile addition to any rider's wardrobe.

Field Day for Camera Fans

Cameras should be brought along at all cost. Every mile of the journey has unforgettable views, while the camp scenes are the photographer's constant delight. Each ride brings its photographic competition for the Townsend Trophy so it behooves every good photographer to look to his lens and shutter.

Unnecessary on a Trail Ride are such items as mink coats, mounted deer heads, egg-beaters, battle cruisers of the "County" class, Bren guns, mothers-in-law, opera capes or frowns.

More important is the inclusion of a bathing suit — or trunks for the men, if preferred; fishing rods with light tackle and flies to attract Rainbow trout from limpid mountain pools; plenty of cigarettes and tobacco, matches, candles, a flashlight, and some kind of jacket that will shed rain — Yes, rain falls even in the Rockies!

It is also advisable to take along a warm sweater, riding breeches, or a pair of denim "longs"; good water-proof boots, and a lusty appetite for flap-jacks, eggs and bacon.

Trail Riders heeding Pamela Flutterby's advice in what to bring and what to wear will suffer no discomfort on the trail.

Their horses too will be happy if they travel light — but without skimping on the necessities that your Aunt Pamela has just been prattling about.

Bye-bye for now. Aunt Pamela hopes to see you on the next Trail Ride.

Horses Get Refresher

Horse Quits at Four

"Sorry, bud; it's 4 o'clock"

Labor unions may be man-made institutions but even horses can be conscious of their legal rights when it comes to working hours.

This is particularly true of "Gray Dog", former trail riding pony of Banff Springs Hotel who made a point of knocking off from work at sharp four o'clock every afternoon.

Neither dude nor cowboy could get the 14-year old gelding to leave the stable on or after 4.00 p.m. And if Gray Dog happened to be on the trail at that hour he would turn about and trot back to the stable despite the pleas of his rider.

According to Dick Roberts, manager of the stables, Gray Dog was a perfectly normal horse in all other respects, and was also very obliging to guests. It was only after he passed his 13th birthday that he developed the "eight-hour-day" complex, and from then on Gray Dog's riders had to have their outings planned accordingly.

The horse showed no discrimination in the case of novices, experts, dudes, cowboys, men, women or children — or even the stable staff. At four o'clock Gray Dog's working day had ended, and that's all there was to it.

Just how the horse developed so uncanny a sense of time is hard to explain, but his horse sense must have told him when four o'clock had rolled around regardless of where he happened to be at that time.

Gray Dog is no longer attached to the Banff equine staff. Chances are, however, that when he reaches the horse equivalent of 65 years of age he will insist upon retirement with pension.

guides are usually on the lookout just in case absent-minded trail riders forget to observe this rule.

Horses quite naturally like to be appreciated — particularly if they have accomplished something out of the ordinary. So when your mount has pawed his way carefully over submerged boulders, hidden by the foaming spray of a shallow mountain river, and without so much as getting you splashed, give him an appreciative pat on the neck, or behind the ears — if you can reach that far. The horse will love it and will be that much more anxious to please.

It is also well to remember that a 14-mile day's ride, while restful and relaxing for the rider, calls for plenty of foot-work from the trail horse. That is why thoughtful trail riders have a habit of dismounting and leading their horses when the trail becomes unusually steep, rocky or otherwise hard to negotiate. Not only does it give the horse a well deserved rest, but it gives the rider a chance of getting in a bit of foot-work as well.

MISS GRACE POWERS, LIFE MEMBER, DIES

News of the passing of Miss Grace Powers of Peekskill, N.Y., a life member of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, was heard with deep regret by trail riding colleagues in both Canada and the United States.

The late Miss Powers, who had 2,576 miles of Rocky Mountain trail riding to her credit, joined the Trail Riders society in 1932, and took considerable pride in her 2,500-mile button which she won a few seasons back.

A keen lover of horses, Miss Powers had several of her own at Peekskill and at South Lee, Mass. where she maintained a farm. She was particularly well known in Jasper, Alta. where for many years she had spent her summer vacations.
